

Dr. Patricia Adelekan

Dr. Patricia Adelekan, DTM (Dr. Pat as she is often called) lives in Anaheim, Ca. She is currently a Commissioner for the Anaheim Cultural and Heritage Commission; a member of Los Amigos of Orange County; the Santa Ana Kiwanis Club; OCNAACP (Orange County National Association for the Advancement of Colored People); a life member of the NCNW (National Council of Negro Women); a (CTA) Certified Tourism Ambassador, Anaheim; and a Distinguished Toastmaster.

In addition to her life as a Civil Rights Leader and Pioneer, she is also a 50+ year veteran in education who has distinguished herself as a world renown international multi-lingual teacher/professor; teacher trainer; expert curriculum designer, researcher, program evaluator; textbook writer; test developer, and humanitarian.

She is the founder of notable Youth-on-the-Move, Inc., a 30-year-old 501(c)(3) not-for-profit education organization that helps youth succeed in life with the help of positive community role models and mentors; and founder of the world distinguished International Educators' Hall of Fame event, Museum, and Learning Center. She is a sought-after international author, writer, speaker and businesswoman. She was married to Senator Adetunji Adelekan, M.D. (Harvard University) of Nigeria, West Africa. They are the parents of four professional adults and the grandparents of 6. Dr. Pat can be reached at 714-628-9844 or p_adelekan@yahoo.com

